

BUTLER SHOCKED SENATORS

Only One Who Ever Procured Suit Against His State—Republicans Want to be Rid of Him.
By Thomas J. Pence.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—Marion Butler admitted during the taking of testimony in the suit of the South Dakota against North Carolina to enforce the payment of those repudiated bonds, that he was employed by the holders of the worthless paper while he was supposed to be representing his native State in the highest office the people of the Commonwealth were able to bestow on him. This employment, according to Butler, took place in January, 1901, and he was then a Senator from North Carolina.

When the aforesaid Butler, while a United States, took the fee of the bond speculators in New York to trump up legislation through friends in Congress that was intended to harass his native State, he did a thing that shocked members of the Senate, and which so far as I have ever heard, is without parallel in the whole history of the membership of the Senate.

I have often asked the question, and so far as I can ascertain Marion Butler is the only member of the Senate in the whole history of the nation who ever took a fee to appear against the State that honored him.

But what I am getting at is a new angle with reference to Butler's employment to appear against the State of his birth that was amply compensating him so far as the needs of living were concerned. This phase of Butler's bond venture has not been advanced before, so far as I can recall, and was given me by a North Carolina Republican. Said this Tar Heel Republican:

The fact seems to have been entirely overlooked that the ink was hardly dry on Butler's license commissioning him to practice law in North Carolina when he accepted employment at the hands of the Shaefer, the New York speculators holding the repudiated bonds. Mind you, the Shaefer was not an investor; they never advanced a cent to North Carolina, but simply bought up the repudiated paper as a matter of speculation. When Butler was employed by the Shaefer, he had been in possession of his license from the Supreme Court of North Carolina to practice law for a period of sixteen months, though he had never appeared in case in court. He was given his law license in the fall of 1899, and went on the payroll of Shaefer in 1901. Being a member of the Senate, Butler did not even pretend to practice law. He was nothing more than a novice. In fact, he never intended to practice law, not while lobbying was so easy and remunerative for an ex-Senator in Washington. The Shaefer did not employ Butler as a lawyer, but as a lobbyist to smooth the way for a suit. This he did in splendid shape through his bosom friend, Pettigrew, as he has admitted in his sworn testimony now on file in the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Butler has unlimited gall, and there is not much surprise over the fact that he should go up and down the State and endeavor to cover up his treachery to North Carolina while serving the New York speculators whose money he took to harass the State that honored him. He tries to defend himself by saying the bonds were valid, though it is common knowledge that he disregards the facts when he says the State got value received. But grant for argument's sake that the bonds should have been paid at full value—and that is not admitted by anybody in the State who knows the facts—it does not make Butler look any better. He was not actuated by a patriotic motive in anything he did. He espoused the Shaefer cause for money when he was supposed to be serving the State. He was not even a practicing lawyer, and his retainer as well as his services rendered were those of a lobbyist. I do not believe there is an honest Republican in North Carolina who will come out in the open and attempt to condone or justify Butler's perfidy to his State. Honest Republicans in the State should begin and never stop until they drive this man out of the party. We will never deserve the confidence of the people until we do."

This revelation as to Butler's bond connection did not come from a Democrat, but was furnished to this writer by a North Carolina Republican, who is well known in the State.

The house in which Andrew Johnson took the oath as President of the United States, April 15, 1865, is less fortunate than the historic little frame house in Raleigh where the sixteenth occupant of the White House was born. For some years it has formed a part of the Raleigh Hotel. On the site of the building in which President Johnson was sworn in, the hotel company is erecting a one-million-dollar addition to its present plant.

Dr. T. P. Sale, the genial warden of the State Prison, spent last week in Washington attending the sessions of the National and International Prison Association. At the meeting of the International Association every civilized country in the world was represented by delegates, who delivered addresses in their native tongue. Interpreters disclosed to the English-speaking delegates what the foreigners said. Dr. Sale was the biggest man in the convention, and no member attracted more attention than he. The convention meets next year in London.

DOWN AND OUT.

Men Who Fought Tariff Reform and Stood for the Interests, Must Go—Morehead, Cowles and Grant Will Walk the Plank.

Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, the great insurgent Republican leader, who says that the New York Republican platform just adopted under the influence of Roosevelt is a humbug, wrote in the Wisconsin Republican platform these words:

"The Payne-Aldrich tariff is not a compliance with the pledge of the Republican party made in its national platform."

The little old stand-pat anything-to-please-the-boss of the pie counted Republican machine of North Carolina is claiming that this bill is so good that our mills should not grumble because they stand idle under it. Senator LaFollette publishes a weekly paper called the Roll Call, and it says that wherever the people look into the record of the stand-patters they knock them over like ten pins. When the Roll Call hears of the me-too Republican Congress man of North Carolina it may take the trouble to knock them over if one of them should happen to be returned. The paper says:

"The Roll Call made plain to the people of California the devotion of Senator Flint to Aldrichism and the System in the tariff revision. Flint is not a candidate for re-election."

"The Roll Call gave the people of Maine the rank and status of Senator Hale in the Aldrich machine. It was republished broadcast throughout the State. Senator Hale will shortly bow his farewell from the stage of American politics."

"The Roll Call told the people of Minnesota of their misrepresentation by Cannon's man, Tawney, in Congress. Tawney was overwhelmingly defeated in the primaries for the Republican nomination."

"The Roll Call gave the people of Iowa the record of Congressmen Smith, Kennedy and Hull. Smith and Kennedy won their re-nominations only after a desperate fight, and Kennedy only by a narrow margin, while Hull was defeated by a Progressive Republican."

"The Roll Call told the people of Kansas what the record showed of the services of Calderhead, Scott, Reeder and Miller to Cannonism and the System. The people nominated Progressive Republicans to replace them."

"The Roll Call proclaimed the System services of McKinlay of California. The voters nominated in his place a Republican who believes in government by the people."

"The Roll Call went into the home of the steel trust and exposed Dalzell, floor leader of the Cannon machine. Dalzell was renominated by a bare majority of 207 votes, whereas in years past his majorities have been overwhelming."

"The Roll Call told the people of Michigan of the devotion of Senator Burrows to Aldrichism and the Interests, and the people of Michigan in a State-wide primary repudiated Burrows and nominated in his stead a candidate pledged to Progressive Republicanism."

"The Roll Call presented the record of Senator Warner of Missouri, a record of weakness and 'regularity' the people of Missouri wanted to be shown, and Senator Warner announced his retirement as a candidate for re-election to the Senate."

"The Roll Call gave the people of Oregon the me-too record of its System team of Congressmen, Ellis and Hawley. Hawley got through, but Ellis, who Cannon in the tariff session had promoted to a position on the committee on Ways and Means, was defeated for renomination."

The Roll Call analyzed for the voters the System-serving, Cannon-faithful congressional career of Stafford of Wisconsin. Stafford was defeated in the primaries."

And this Mr. McKinlay, turned down by the Republicans of California because he wasn't fit to represent them, is the gentleman that Morehead brought to North Carolina to tell the people how to vote.

The Democrats in charge of the election machinery is a very different matted from submitting it to the people with the Republicans in charge of the election machinery? for he knows, and I know, and everybody knows, that with the Democrats in charge of the machinery, the illiterate and incompetent and unfit negro vote of the state will not be cast, whereas, with the Republicans in charge of the machinery our registration books will be filled with the names of thousands of negroes not entitled to vote.

"It may be instructive to Mr. Meares to know that the negroes in the senate of 1879 voted against submitting to the people the amendment preventing these special tax bonds from being paid without the assent of the people, and this would be their attitude now if permitted to vote."

"If Mr. Meares and Mr. Morehead want to put me in a corner, let them show the books. How much money have you got and where did you get it? Taking all these things into consideration and putting them together reminds me of the position which Abraham Lincoln once took. He said:

"When we see a lot of framed timbers, different portions of which we know have been gotten out at different times and places and by different workmen, and when we see these timbers joined together, and see they exactly make the frame of a house or a mill, all the tenons and mortises exactly fitting, and all the lengths and proportions of the different pieces exactly adapted to their respective places, in such a case we feel it impossible not to believe that the workmen all understood one another from the beginning."

There are thousands of "Get-Rich-Quick" Schemes.

That work all right for the other fellow, but the ONE safe and absolutely certain way for YOU to save money is to deposit your money in the bank, check out less than you deposit, and place the balance each month to your account in the saving department and let it earn money for you.
